DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claim 8 is objected to because of the following informalities: Line 10 contains two periods. Claims are only allowed to have one period. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable by Bonney et al. U.S. Patent No. 6,466,953 ('Bonney').

Bonney discloses :

As to claim 1,

adding a first graphical element to an image displayed on a monitor of a first computer system; See 5:4-11;

displaying a graphical user interface on the monitor of the first computer system, wherein the graphical user interface is configured for receiving non-graphical information; See 5:20-45;

entering first non-graphical information into the graphical user interface wherein the entity name, device name, and description are deemed to be non-graphical entered into the graphical user interface; See 5:35-45; 6:7-13;

the first computer system transmitting first element data to a database for storage therein, wherein the first element data represents the first graphical element; See 5:55-65;

the first computer system transmitting first non-graphical information data to the database for storage therein, wherein the first non-graphical information data represents the first non-graphical information entered into the graphical user interface; See .

Bonney discloses the claimed invention except for storing data via the Internet communication. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to store data via an internet connection since it was known in the art that databases need not be located on a hard drive near the user, but can be on a network so other users can use the database and that connecting the database to the internet would allow anyone with access to the internet to gain access world-wide.

As to claim 2,

wherein the first computer system comprises a CAD computer system and wherein the first graphical element comprises a first CAD graphical element; See 5:1-65.

As to claim 3,

wherein the graphical user interface comprises a plurality of fields, wherein the first non-graphical information comprises a plurality of non-graphical information components, and wherein entering first non-graphical information into the graphical user interface comprises the plurality of non-graphical information components into the plurality of fields, respectively, of the graphical user interface; See 5:20-35.

As to claim 4,

the first computer system receiving, via internet communication, specification list data, wherein specification list data represents a list of specifications displayable on the monitor of the first computer system, wherein each specification of the list represents a data unit stored in the database in data communication with the first computer system, wherein each data unit contains data representing non-graphical information wherein specification data is deemed to be data that is stored in the database and is not giving any special patentability because of the type of data, data is deemed to include all data; See 5:4-65;

the first computer system displaying the list of specifications; See 5:5-65; adding a second graphical element to the image displayed on the monitor of the first computer system; See 5:6-65;

the first computer system transmitting second graphical element data to the database for storage therein via internet communication, wherein the second graphical element data represents the second graphical element; See 5:6-65;

the first computer system transmitting link data to the database via internet communication, wherein the link data indicates that one of the data units stored in the database is to be linked within the database to the second graphical element data after the second graphical element data is stored in the database; See 5:6-65.

As to claim 18,

a database receiving and storing first CAD element data generated by a first computer system in data communication with the database, wherein the first CAD element data represents a first CAD element displayable on a monitor; See 5:6-65; creating a link in the database between the stored first CAD element data and one of a plurality of component specifications stored in the database, wherein each of the plurality of component specifications comprises non-graphical descriptive data; See 5:6-65.

and the one of the plurality of component specifications stored in the database.

As to claims 5-17 and 19-26, they are combinations and subcombinations of limitation previously rejected and are rejected for their respective reasons as stated above.
